Health & safety

The health, safety and wellbeing of all people, whether employees, colleagues or the public is important in any situation, however, in construction the dangers and consequences are extremely high and are an ongoing concern.

We recognise as a business that our people are our most valuable asset, and that the provision of a safe and healthy workplace is integral to successful business performance and sustained growth.

There is both a moral and legal duty to look after yourself as well as others whilst at work. The legal aspects of these requirements are enshrined by Health and Safety Law, in both Acts of Parliament and various EU Regulations. The enforcement of Health and Safety Law is closely monitored and enforced by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and Local Authorities (LA).

We invest heavily in health and safety training and have set our training benchmark as follows:

Site Managers and Foreman hold 5 Day SMSTS, UKATA Asbestos Awareness, Site Managers CSCS Cards, CDM and Risk Management certificates.

All site based operatives hold CSCS Cards, UKATA Asbestos Awareness, as well as the various plant operator's licences that are a necessity.

With the appropriate training and experience our competent teams are able to carefully plan and coordinate every step of our client's project with the endeavour of making them a healthier and safer working environment.

Stud Partitioning , Dry lining & Cielings

Stud Partitioning

- stud Partitions are traditionally formed by the application of plasterboard to a timber or metal stud frame; the materials used are determined by the fire and acoustic ratings required.

MF Cielings

- MF Suspended System ceilings are ideal for commercial and domestic applications, where services are to be accommodated and when upgrading and protecting existing structures.

Suspended Cielings

- Suspended Cielings are faster and easier to install, making for strong and stable ceilings.
